Rattan, woven by hand.

Rattan is a climbing palm that grows in the forests of Indonesia. It is light, strong and flexible, and it can be bent with heat into almost any shape.

Every rattan piece is shaped and woven by hand. The canes are steamed and bent into frames, wrapped at the joints, then woven for seats and backs. The weave decides the look of the piece.

WEAVES

Open cane	The outer skin of the cane, woven in an open lattice. Light and airy.
Split core	The inner core of the cane, woven tight and even.
Kubu	Rattan with a natural grey tone, in a dense weave.
Bent cane	Whole canes steamed and bent by hand into frames, arms and legs.

FINISHES

Natural, light natural and kubu grey. Seat cushions in linen or a fabric of your choice.

Natural rattan is made for indoor spaces and covered terraces.
